“ I had met Eric back when we were just 19yrs. old. As the years passed we both had realized that we were both here for a reason. first we dated then were engaged and both raising our son Jacob. As time passed although we did not always get along Eric and Jacob had a very strong Father and Son bond that could not and will never be broken. although circumstance at times got in the way Eric and Jacob always found their way back to each other. As we pray the rest of the family will come together and help each other thru, Eric will always be Jacobs Father for the rest of his life.

I am holding Eric.(Paula. Marie Skalne.) The last time I saw Eric we discussed this very day and we had time to share our spiritual beliefs with each other. I lost track of him for years until recently. Sending love to family during this sad time.

PS

Grief has a way of turning the pages in your book of life. One by one you remember the smiles, tenderness and times of joy. In between there are smudges, dark periods hidden, time erased, clouded by unresolved or unsolved mysteries. I choose to feel both for they are the story, my truth. My heart is heavy today for the story that could have been ours - regretting things unsaid, undone. I rejoice knowing the trials you overcame, Eric, through your courage, dedication and devotion. I am filled with hope thinking you are at peace, held in the embrace of Divine love.
